Timed to coincide with the publication of Urban Wildscapes, published by Routledge and edited by Anna Jorgensen and Richard Keenan, this symposium at the Garden Museum continues to develop the themes found in the book. In particular, the symposium aims to examine diverse past attempts at ordering the city, ranging from twentieth century Modernist Housing utopias to Christiania in Copenhagen and the projects of the Urban Pioneers in Berlin; and the contemporary landscape architectural projects that seek to encourage wildness and disorder in urban landscapes; as well as aiming to explore the range of attitudes towards urban ruins and wilderness that provide the social context for urban rewilding.

Speakers include Anna Jorgensen, Steve Dobson, Alice Mah, Sam Vardy, Dougal Sheridan and Catherine Heatherington.

Registration fee £50 | Concessions £20

Lunch, refreshments and Urban Wildscapes book launch included.

Book online at http://www.gardenmuseum.eventbrite.com or call 020 7401 8865 to book by telephone.